IDENTIFICATION TAGS

Guiding Eyes for the Blind provides each guide puppy with a sturdy metal tag bearing a unique tattoo number and our telephone number. If a puppy should stray we hope a finder will call GEB with the tattoo number so that we may contact the raiser and arrange to have the puppy returned. To increase the likelihood of recovering a stray, we request that each foster add a tag bearing a family name, address and phone number. We recommend not showing the puppy's name so that you can transfer the tag to your next foster puppy and so that a finder will not elicit a positive response from the puppy by using its name.

One of our Northern Vermont volunteers has offered to make stainless steel personal ID tags at $4.00 for the first plus $3.00 for each duplicate ordered at the same time. Although you may specify any message, the imprinted tag will look approximately like this:

If you would like to order such tags with attachment rings, please send your order and an appropriate check to Dumont Rush at the above address.

You may record below the message you want on your tags. Please start each line in the first column; keep your message within the grid and use one box per letter, number, punctuation mark or space. Although the one-inch square tag blank can accommodate as many as seven 20-character lines with severe crowding of both letters and lines, the finished tags are much better looking and more legible if the text is limited to five or six 16-character lines. Anything more that 16 characters per line puts individual letters in contact with each other. Unless you request otherwise, each line will be centered as shown in the example above.
